

THE BOCA BEACON AROUND THE WORLD

Mom Kathy James with Ashley, Lexie and Savannah

BY SAVANNAH JAMES

■ I had never heard of the “Little Grand Canyon” before, but the natural topographical wonders that comprise Providence Canyon State Park were breathtaking! On a short weekend trip in April, my mom, younger sister and I road-tripped to Dothan, Alabama, where my older sister, Ashley, attends Medical School. Upon arrival, we had a short first evening, and after enjoying a delightful dinner at the famous KBC restaurant downtown, we were off to bed, eager for the next morning’s endeavor! Saturday we attacked Providence Canyon full force, opting to explore every excursion along the main path. We saw about half of the nine canyons that characterize the park and the views were just jawdropping! What a fun weekend and also such a hidden gem in our neck of the woods!
