

Look to the stars and know the future ... BOGASCOPTES

Aries: If your eyes are burning every time you drive, it might mean that it's time to get rid of that skunk that lives in the trunk. You will realize after a houseguest departs that what you thought was illegal substance residue on their dresser is actually powdered sugar from a Greek cookie. Sorry for your luck on that one. If you find yourself opening your mouth to mock someone, think twice and keep it shut.

Taurus: Kindness is key in dealing with angry walruses and nasty in-laws.

4-20-5-20

Sometimes they are one in the same, it's true, but the in-laws sometimes have sharper tusks. Either way, it's time to take many deep breaths and use patience and fortitude. A small plate of caramelized yams will happily turn up in your future.

Gemini: Stop kidding yourself about that habit you need to break. Seriously. A squeaky noise in one of your automobile's varied mechanisms will show up, possibly due to your insistence on driving it through 18 inches of salt water. An illuminating moment will occur on Sunday and it will have something to do with a loaf of break (thinly sliced) and a former lover.

Cancer: The jackalopes are still on the move. Take extreme caution when venturing out on Wednesday nights after 8 p.m. You might want to consider purchasing a dark-colored leotard. Speak to someone you respect about your constant battle with your demons ... particularly Megalesius.

6-21-7-22

Leo: Everywhere around you are small black bears who crave Lima beans. Someone will question your decision-making skills on Wednesday and, more to the point, whether you feel as though you might possibly be delusional (they know about you seeing tiny bears). Tell them to pound sand.

Virgo: Your going to have a weird encounter with an "ex" this week and, in a correlated incident, you're going to eat a questionable brownie. The brownie will going to eat a questionable brownie. The brownie will leave you with a much more warm and fuzzy feeling that the ex will.

Libra: Your tennis racket needs to be restrung, know what I mean? Not every day involves brie and sunflowers, but you'll live. Amorous iguanas in your orchids will wake you up on Monday night. Put some Billie Holiday on, put a bottle of baby oil on your windowsill and go back to bed.

Scorpio: You're feeling calm and steady right now, but that will all end when you inadvertently throw a baby into a ceiling fan. The baby will be fine, but will forever judge you for what you did. You will need to keep three different colored highlighters close to you during the middle of the week, as well as two functional wooden wheel spokes.

Sagittarius: Leaving your golf shoes outside the front door will lead to a disturbing accident when you put them on ... more disturbing for the small furry animal who took residence up in them than for you. Kale plays a large role in your cousin's funeral plans.

Capricorn: Candide's advice at the end of his eponymous work, "All is well, but let us cultivate our garden" is clearly telling you to trim in places where the sun don't shine. If your Aunt Minnie asks you to come over, bring a fresh trout.

Aquarius: If you still leave your box of cereal open on the counter after seeing a palmetto bug waddle across your kitchen, you are the definition of insanity. A small troll who lives in your garden will leave you a gift of watermelon seeds and an empty inhaler.

Pisces: Visitors from out of state will find your secret stash of good wine and use it to marinate their lardon. A small white dog will appear in front of you on Wednesday and quote Shakespeare. Disregard him when he begins to pontificate. He has always suffered from the Dunning-Kruger Effect.
